AIG General has donated the equivalent of 920,000 vaccines to children across the world since the start of this longstanding partnership with JCV began in 2007. Each year, based on the number of new Minna no Kenpo medical insurance contracts received, a donation is made through JCV. The number of vaccines donated this year corresponds to the total number of Minna no Kenpo contracts in 2022.

This year, for the first time in four years, a ceremony was held attended by Mutsuko Kenmochi, Chairman, JCV, who said, “There are many children in many developing countries who do not have access to vaccines. Our efforts ensure that not a single vaccine donated is wasted and, in some cases, we have achieved a 100% vaccination rate.”

Takafumi Yae, Personal Accident and Medical Insurance Group Leader, AIG General, received the certification at the ceremony stating, “This is an important initiative where we, together with our customers, can contribute to supporting children. We will continue to spread awareness of the initiative by including flyers in Minna no Kenpo brochures, which we began this year, and will identify ways to provide further support next year.”

Through this initiative, AIG General will continue to support JCV’s activities and contribute to spreading awareness about the importance of providing vaccines to protect children threatened by infectious diseases in developing countries. As a leading global insurance organization, AIG is committed to helping individuals, businesses, and communities, to manage their most challenging risks and create a sustainable impact.

About certified NPO, Japan Committee, Vaccines for the World’s Children (JCV)

JCV is a non-governmental international aid organization focused on providing developing countries with support for vaccines and vaccine supplies, in addition to carrying out public education activities regarding the prevention of infectious diseases. In many developing countries, children are losing their lives to infectious diseases because they are unable to receive vaccinations.
