TOKYO, March 19, 2019— AIG General Insurance Company (AIG General) was honored with a Best Resilience Award in the 2019 Japan Resilience Awards held by the Association for Resilience Japan.

The Japan Resilience Awards are presented to companies and organizations nationwide recognizing contributions to the development of a resilient society for the next generation through ‘activities, technological development, product development and other initiatives that contribute to building strength and flexibility in the nation, its regions, its people and industries.’ The award recognizes the company’s “Flood Lens” tool, which enables rapid insurance payments in the event of disaster. In addition to the Best Resilience Award, AIG General also received an Outstanding Performance Award, with both awards in the “Business and Industry” category.

【Best Resilience Award】
“Flood Lens” tool to enable rapid insurance payouts in the event of disaster

【Outstanding Performance Award】
“BCP ACTIVE CARE promotion” consulting on necessary disaster compensation

Flood Lens is a cutting-edge tool that uses a combination of policyholder information and mapping of disaster areas to define affected locations in the event of disaster and enable expedited insurance payments to policyholders. The Flood Lens tool has been deployed in the areas of western Japan affected by flooding in July 2018, and other such disasters. BCP ACTIVE CARE promotion is a consulting service that predicts and maps potential occurrences of earthquakes, tsunami, flooding and landslides to enable businesses to assess risk potential and prepare appropriate insurance coverage.

Bill Zhang, Corporate Officer, AIG General, who attended the awards ceremony on March 15, said, “Insurance companies have a key role to play in raising risk awareness and expediting disaster risk response. Data & Analytics, being one of AIG General’s core strategies, enable us to provide simple, easy-to-understand ‘ACTIVE CARE’ insurance along with risk consulting, as part of a wide range of measures we take to minimize disaster risk for our customers. We are delighted to receive this award recognizing our efforts in this area.”

AIG General will continue to analyze risk information as a way to minimize the impact of accidents and disasters, working to provide even better, more useful products and services to its customers.
