AIG General donates equivalent of 44,300 child vaccines to registered NPO Japan Committee, Vaccines for the World’s Children (JCV)

TOKYO, November 6, 2020— AIG General Insurance Company (AIG General) is making a donation to registered NPO Japan Committee, Vaccines for the World’s Children (JCV) to provide polio vaccines for 44,300 people.

Certificate of appreciation from JCV

The partnership with JCV has been in place since 2007 and, each year, based on the number of new “Minna no Kenpo” medical insurance contracts received by AIG General, and as a way of expressing our gratitude to our customers, a donation is made through JCV that will deliver vaccines to children in need. The number of vaccines donated this year corresponds to the total number of Minna no Kenpo contracts received during 2019. With customers able to make a contribution to society by purchasing an insurance policy, this activity has been well received and, since its inception, we have donated the equivalent of 820,000 vaccines to children across the world.

We will continue to pursue initiatives aimed at supporting future generations and reducing the risks children face.
