AIG Launches AIG Risk Management Academy (ARMA) in Japan
An educational program focused on developing Japan's strategic risk management professionals of the future

TOKYO – October 16, 2025 – AIG General Insurance Company, Ltd. (AIG) today announced the launch of its AIG Risk Management Academy (ARMA) in Japan with the first cohort to commence in May 2026. ARMA is a unique global educational program originating in 2014, developed to meet the growing demands facing risk managers and leaders. For the first time outside of the UK and Europe, ARMA will be held in Japan to provide risk management professionals with the skills and knowledge to achieve the global standard of risk management.

In an increasingly complex world with risks becoming more global and interconnected, companies operating in Japan are evermore expected to reexamine the risks that they face and consider the potential costs associated. Risk managers have a broader and more strategic role in their organizations and the launch of ARMA in Japan is part of AIG's vision to support professionals in the industry to develop the skills, knowledge and capabilities to influence the strategic decision-making process.

"Now, more than ever, risks and risk management are an issue to be discussed in the Boardroom. I am delighted to launch ARMA, a highly acclaimed educational program, here in Japan - where we can deliver value to risk management professionals through supporting tangible skills development, as we navigate the uncertainty and challenges in this complex world," said James Nash, President and CEO, AIG General Insurance, AIG Japan Holdings.

The learning journey throughout ARMA highlights the importance of listening, storytelling and embracing change to unlock effective risk management. The Japan program will consist of three core modules held at quarterly intervals. Modules will consist of speaker sessions by global industry experts and highly-qualified practitioners from multinational corporations, as well as interactive workshops and case studies. In addition, networking with peers throughout the program will enable participants to build a cross-industry community and be part of an alumni network after the program's completion. The program is open to early career to mid-level risk managers in companies with global operations, helping to meet the strong demand and necessity to develop Japan's risk managers of tomorrow.
